TEF—EVANSVILLE, Nov. 5.—George Haines, a civil engineer, and a member of the Skill Valley Engineers' Corps, was found dead on the road between St. Clair and the body are James Connell and his Port Carbon. It lay directly across their path at the base of the culm heap George W. Snyder's old colliery, at what was known as Mill Creek. The Connells were unable to identify the victim. They made an examination and found that bullets had penetrated his left breast and temple. His wounds were pulled out and were empty. They were observing these things John H. Haines, another miner, came up and identified the body as George Haines of St. Clair. They took the body a mile up the road to Haines's house, spreading an alarm of murder.

For some months past he, with his brother, had been working on a contract to furnish the city with the coal. He was then in the habit of coming home every night with his fiancé, Mary Williams, and he used to be home at 10 o'clock. It is custom to remain until nearly 2 o'clock, when, by walking a mile and a half, he would take the train leaving Fortville for Shamokin. When he bade Miss Williams good-bye this morning he promised to be home on Monday night.

He was an exceptionally modest, unobtrusive and gentlemanly young man. He was about 25 and had a pleasant countenance. There is no clue to the murders, the motive, robbery, can be ascribed as the reason that he was not in the city at the time of the robbery. He had no money with him. He had only $20 in his pocket, and the murderers stole his money. He was a very nice fellow, and that the robbery was only a scheme to get the police off the track. Coal and iron are the main industries of the city, and run the guilty ones down.

Taking Notes Surprisingly in the Casino Gallery.

to Himan, a well-known local music man, bought a balcony seat at the Casino last night, and in the middle of the first act discovered by an usher taking notes of the Manager Aronson. Himan said he had been sent to the theatre by Music Director Richard Saffell of 41 Union square to take notes of the opera for a pot-pouri of songs. He said he had been told by Joseph Leventritt, counsel of the Casino, that he was sent for. Himan said he was sent for, and to him Himan made up his mind to be honest and to take notes together, and taken down eight of the songs, he said, for the new pot-pouri were already being made.

Himan said that he had intended to take notes of the songs of the new Low Down burlesque of "The Yeoman" if he hadn't discovered what he was up to. He said he had been permitted to take an affidavit. It will be used to secure a conviction against him, he said. He was caught stealing the music with a camera box, that he pointed at the singer from a balcony box.

Pockets.

A dressed man got off a Fourth avenue car in the Park avenue tunnel at Thirty-eighth street about five o'clock yesterday afternoon, staggered a few feet and fell upon his face. He was picked up and taken to St. Vincent's hospital by ambulance. Capt. Ryan's men found him. He had been badly hurt, and was unable to tell how he happened there. It appeared to have been drinking. He said as Zachariah Meade of 174 Lexington avenue, New York city, told him. He was a banker or broker, and was carrying a large sum of money in a big pouch in his pocket. Capt. Ryan sent him down to Wall street in a taxicab, and notified the police. They were looking for two policemen to save him from being killed.

That Saying, "Is the Soup."
 Independent writes to THE SUN that the
 "Is the soup" now used by both sides in the campaign, originated with Gen. Winfield Scott and was used during his term. The writer of the history says he remembers the cartoons in which the soup was conspicuous, but he was too young to see the meaning of the campaign cry.
